NATHAN HARRIS

As a native of Michigan, I acquired most of my skills through my experience as a creative director for various organizations across the country. I have applied my talents in a wide range of industries, including live art, production, branding and marketing materials, and local business advertising. Alongside my personal clients, I maintained a full-time commitment at different organizations while building my freelance career.

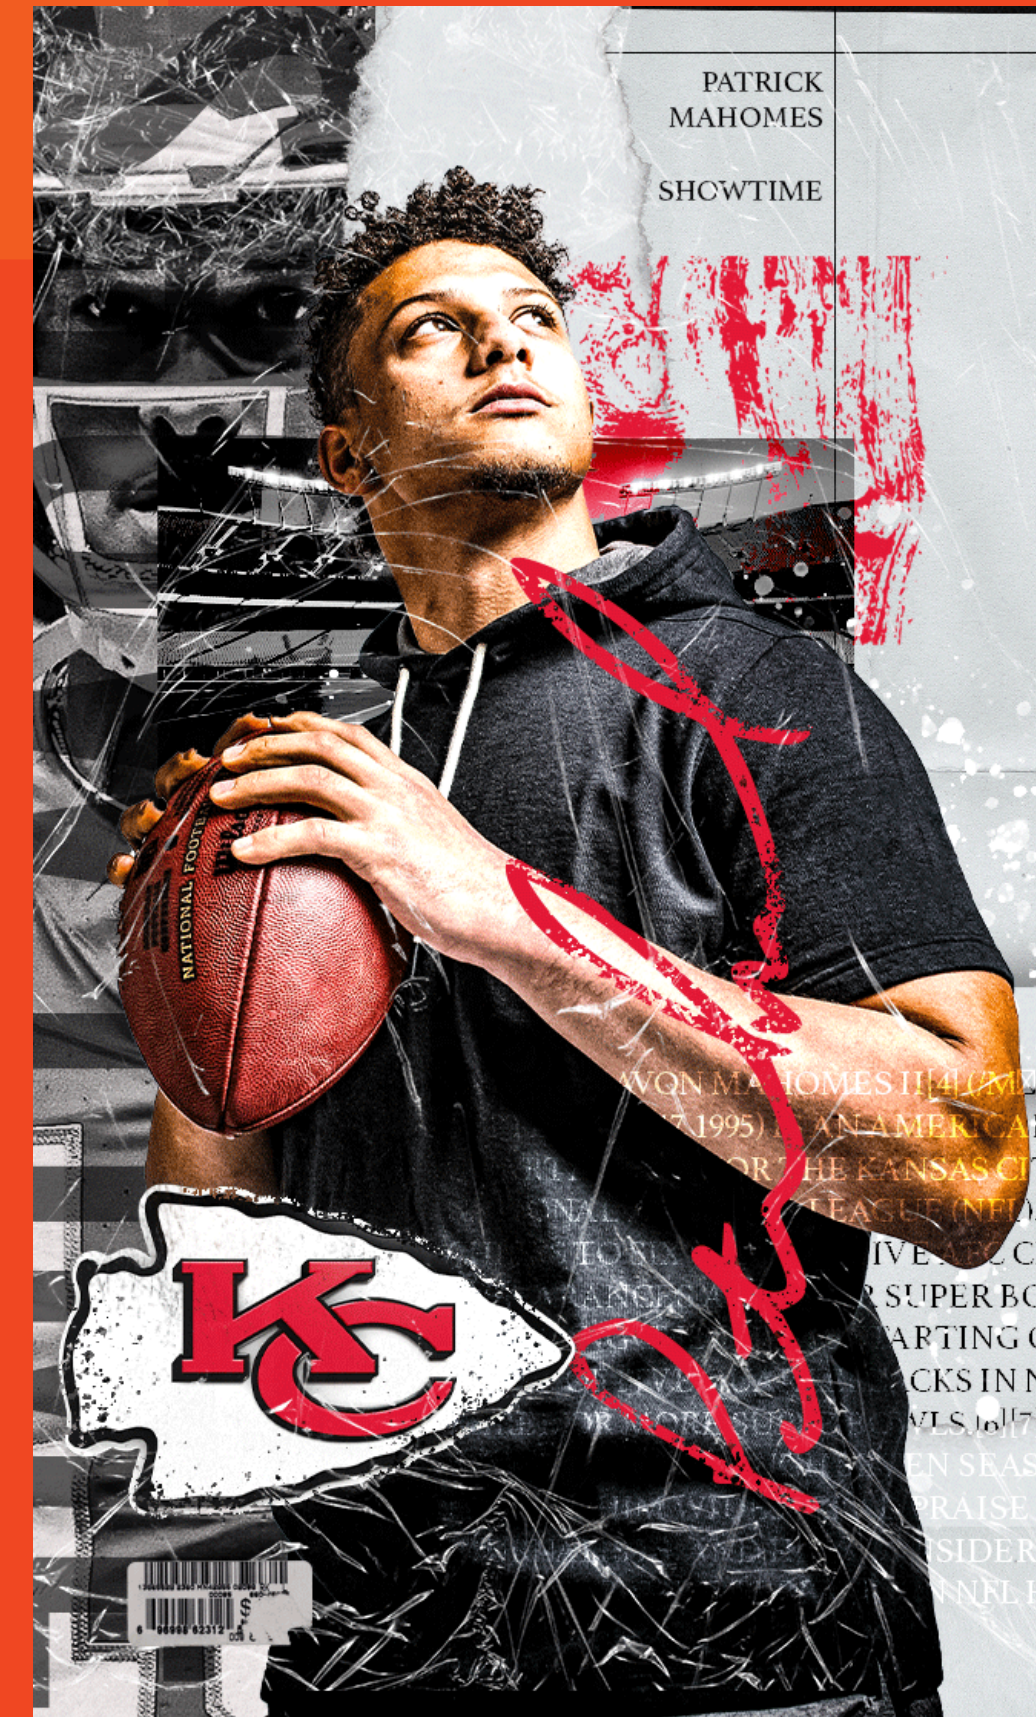

After completing an extended contract with Electronic Arts, I have been honing my craft as a graphic designer for over 13 years and currently reside in Orlando, Florida. While I have a passion for design, it isn't my only driving force. Providing excellent customer service, using my creativity to find the right solutions, and collaborating with clients who are excited to work with me are just a few of the factors that fuel my insatiable desire to create.
